A BABY'S INFLUENCE

(Original)

The good book says, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom THE BARRE DAILY TIMES of heaven." I, a workin' man, without what there is in this except for a cirhadn't been a man as needed somethin' to keep no from takin' a plunge into drawed me under.

Mabel, and the father o' my boy, Tom- are made in Philadelphia. I was the happy husband o' my wife, my, and was earnin' good wages in a restoratives and that it makes solid safe and lock company. One day I was flesh, muscle and strength, weigh sent to a bank to fix the safe lock. The yourself before taking it, and see ed from the safe, and I was accused o' takin' it. They couldn't prove nothin'.

and saw Mabel and the kid starvin' I $2.90. Book free. grew desperate. Havin' the name of a thief, I concluded I might as well be a thief. The president and eashier of the bank I was suspicioned o' robbin' had safes in their homes, and the cashier's I'd put in myself, and it would be easy openin'. I went to the house one night about 10 o'clock to get the bearin's, intendin' to rob the safe just before dawn. While I was standin' there a carriage drove up, and a gentleman and a lady got in. I was thinkin' the cashier and his lady was goin' out to a financial situation. Write or call for a copy. bail or some'rs, and I made up my mind to do the job before they got

I had no trouble gittin' into the house, pickin' the kitchen door lock with a skeleton key and explorin' the main floor. I found nobody there. The gas was turned low in the hall, and as I went up I turued it out. I knew where the safe was, well enough-in a little room off the main front bedroom. I skirmished around awhile and made up my mind there was nobody home at all. Openin' the safe room door, I flashed my dark lantern about and found from the furniture, toys and such things that I was in the nursery I wasn't long bein' confirmed in this. for suddenly the light fell plumb on the face of a sleepin' babe.

I knew at once that there was somebody at home with the baby, though it might have been left with the nurse and she gone out with her feller. I was goin' to git out when the baby, havin' the light in its eyes, opened 'em and looked about. Fearin' the child would cry, I made up my mind to a bold stroke to prevent bein' given away. I shut the door and turned up the gas, which was burnin' low. As soon as the baby's eyes got used to the light it smiled at me.

That smile took me back to my Tommy at home in his little crib beside his mother, for my Mabel wouldn't have no nurse for her boy even if she had loads o' money to pay one. I went up to the little thing and put out my fluger. It give me the same grip To was used to givin' me. It seemed to me it was a grip o' welcome, and when it said, "Goo, goo, goo!" I was certain it was sayin; "I'm glad you've come. My nurse has left me in the lurch, and I'd 'a' been lonesome."

Well, the little chap would not go to sleep till I put my cheek down beside his'n and kept perfectly still for awhile. I was anxious to get him off my hands, for he'd saved me from what I was a-goin' to do, and I was hot to escape from the house without bein' caught. As soon as I knew by his breathin' be was asleep I went on tiptoe to the gas jet, turned it low and, openin' the "Hands up!" said a man in dressin' gown and slippers, pointin' a revolver at me. I recognized at once the cash-

"I haven't opened your safe, Mr. Stevens," I said. "Your baby saved me." "I know you haven't. I've been watching you through the keyhole."

"I made a blunder," I muttered, crestfallen. "I thought you went out with Mrs. Stevens."

"Luckily there was no one but me to stay with the baby, and I am very much at home, as you see. Who are pay back your money. you and what are you doing in my house?"

"I'm the man us fixed the safe lock at the bank. I haven't had a job since and come here intendin' to help my-

He hung his head and seemed to be thinkin'; then he looked up,

"I know you didn't," he said. "You know? How?"

"Come in here." He took me by the wrist and led me back into the nursery and turned up the light. "My child has saved you, and it has made a man of me. Promise me over this bit of innocence to keep my secret, and I'll set you right."

"I promise." "When you were working at the lock I went into the safe and took the money. I needed it to make good my accounts, which were short.
